

Santa Cruz River: Path of My Balance
By Ramon Olivas

My name is Ramon Olivas. I love taking pictures of Mother Earth's blessings.

Before, during and after Covid, I rode my bike on the Santa Cruz River Path in the early morning.

Seeing the wildlife on the Santa Cruz River Path contributed to my balance.

The families of wildlife touched my heart.

The hawks flying reminded me to fly over my unbalanced and negative energy.

The ducks in the lake by the river were beautiful.

The coyotes were cautiously aware of my presence.

The hawks would also look at my direction.

I was told hummingbirds were spiritual family members. Papi? Mami?

I was lucky to see a bobcat a few times.

Thank you Mother Earth for allowing me to see your blessings.

Mother Earth wins over Covid!
